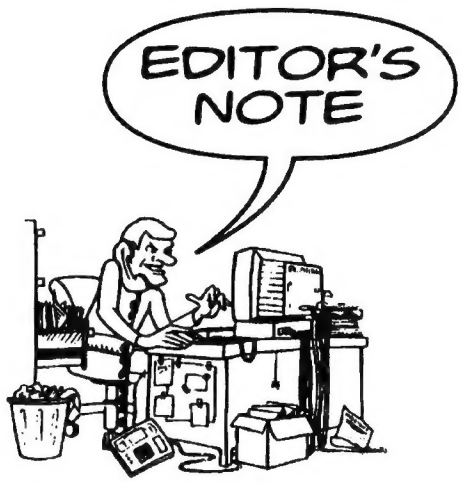
Get your books ready, and don't miss out!



A couple of issues we ago we ran a reader survey asking for input from our readers about what they like and dislike about Comics Source. The results were a little surprising. It came as no real surprise that the favorite section of Comics Source is the marketplace, after all, that's what this magazine is all about. But we were surprised to find out that the vast majority of you liked having the WANTED and FOR SALE sections separate, instead of all together. This issue marks our change back to separate sections for the marketplace listings.

Everyone loves TickerTape. That's not surprising, considering that the market has been screaming for a product like TickerTape for several years now. It wasn't surprising to learn that everyone loves TickerTape, but it was rewarding. Thanks for the vote of support. We will continue to expand and improve TickerTape to make it the best it can be.

It surprised us to learn that many of the articles and departments in Comics Source are of very little interest to most of you. We thought many of you liked reading about the Golden Age, or articles about the comic book characters of the '60s, but apparently those kind of articles missed the mark with most of you.

More market related editorial. That's what we continually got from readers who participated in the survey. More market reports. More Top Ten. More Keith Contarino's Silver & Gold. More Letters To The Editor.

OK, Comics Source is a marketplace for collectors, and it should report on the marketplace. That's what you are telling us, and that makes sense to me. So be watching for changes in Comics Source. More Marketplace, more TickerTape, more market reports, less of everything else. Thanks to everyone who helped us to see the trees in the forest.

Give 'Em To Me

When I read Keith's words about how traditional and boring DC War books are (CS#10, Silver & Gold), I just had to write in and say that I couldn't agree more. In fact, they're the worst thing that has ever seen the light of day. I hate them! I hate them! I hate them! I hate them! And what is more, I despise them! Anybody else out there who hates DC war knows there isn't a single redeeming thing about them. DC war books should have been in those same pile of Beatles albums that got charbroiled back when John got misquoted (Can anyone tell me what Tennessee did with all the melted vinyl?) [they used it to make George Jones albums—ed]

There is only one person in the world who knows how to correctly — how shall I say — eliminate DC's Big-5, and that is me. In the name of decency, family values, and any other fascist cause you can think of, just send them along to me. I'll pay for your postage and the cost of disposing of them adequately. I know how much you want to get rid of them, so let me carry your burden, ok?

In all seriousness, Keith, you didn't actually think you'd get away unscathed after "dicing" the DC big-5 like you did. I won't make any comment on Sgt. Fury, which I have seldom read because the title never interested me, so I don't feel particularly qualified to speak about it. You, however, seem to have taken great liberty to speak out against Rock of Easy Co. and the rest of the war stories and titles DC was putting out during "your true golden age." I personally think you never gave them a chance (like me with Sgt. Fury), and you just condemned them without a trial. If you had read them, you would have discovered that Kanigher and Kubert - the same team that made Enemy Ace one of the most thought-provoking comics of that decade (and to your credit, you gave some credence to this notion) - had been doing fabulous Sgt. Rock stories for Our Army At War since 1959 along with other works since 1955. Kanigher and Heath were doing stunning work on the Haunted Tank for G.I. Combat and a whole group of talented people (especially Haney, Novick, Grandenetti, Andru and Esposito, Able, Drucker and Severin) were putting out some of the most readable books since the inception of comic books. When I say readable, I mean that anybody over the age of seven can read them (this is where writers like Kanigher, Haney, Lee, and Fox deserve kudos) and still feel like their intelligence wasn't insulted. I agree that many of the DC Superhero titles were written poorly, but I will also attest (as will any person who has an inkling about the DC Big-5) that the war stuff that they were putting out was of a consistently high quality. There were definite exceptions. Much of the war stuff from pre-code to about 1956 was very difficult to endure. In my opinion, Kanigher hadn't really latched on to the knack that he had with the Rock stories and some of the stuff that predated Rock. One fabulous example of the quality of the DC Big-5 is a Kubert/Kanigher collaboration called "The Silent Ones" which appeared in Our Fighting Forces #40 (Dec '58). When Rock started appearing consistently, there were some stunning stories like "Easy's Hardest Battle" from Our Army at War #99 (Oct '60). Things just kept coming out that actually challenged the reader; and they were entertaining to boot. In fact, the characters were given a great deal of realism. Kanigher is an innovator in that he didn't create stories to fit his characters (as did most of the DC and much of the Marvel stable)...he created characters to tell his stories, and the character development was paramount to the flow and cohesiveness of each plot. Who cares about Sgt. Rock? Well, the ranks are growing and there are tons that would take an Easy Co., Haunted Tank, or Johnny Cloud story over some goofy dinosaur war book. I'm telling ya' Keith, there are very few serious war collectors who care an ounce for the dinosaurs. Star

We love letters–and we pay you for them! Send us a letter. Cover any topic you like, and, if we publish it, you'll get a coupon good for ten free Marketplace listings. Your viewpoint is important, and we want to hear what you have to say. Write today!

Spangled War Stories 90-137 are all overvalued and not at all difficult to come by (except 90-110 which are only tough in high grade). In my opinion, it was the dinosaurs that were the most unreadable stories from the Big-5. Keith, you have some good taste in comics (those Flashes were truly great and I agree with you on the superhero stuff for the most part), but you got the DC Big-5 pegged entirely wrong. If you don't want them, that's cool. Like I said, just pass them right along to me. They will never see the light of day again (mwaa-ha-ha-ha-ha..)

More Argosy Price Guide

I came late on the Argosy Price Guide questions (CS #11). Am I the only guy who still has one? [no, Tom, see CS#12 where Bruce Edwards of Quasar Comics had one for sale.—editor]

My memory is that they were advertised in Marvel comics at the time. Mine is ©1965, but my memory puts it at least a year later, tho I didn't get mine new, but traded comics for it. In my group of friends, it wasn't considered very good, there was little in the way of real information that we hadn't already picked up from careful reading of RBCC ads. The cost of the book was $5 in the mid 60s and that was equal to 20 gallons of gas. It just seemed like a dumb, funky little book (Blackhawk #1 at $25.00) and you could get the information in more interesting ways. The G. B. Love books told you who was in the early issues, showed you their costumes and stuff, and Claude Held and Phil Seuling were considered to be fair dealers, you could rely on their pricing, and the Grand Book Center in Brooklyn put out a huge, very inclusive list of stuff, including, I believe for the first time, what became to be called "esoteric comics," mostly from the postwas - pre-code comics boom, and tho the prices were way high, they had tons of stuff that wasn't really considered collectable. Howard Rogofski was also considered way high, but his conditions were fair, and he always had cool stuff, so everybody I knew bought comics from him at one time or another. My memory is that the Argosy Guide was high, too, but looking at it now, I'm not sure why. The book lists Tales Of Suspense 39, Mint at $2.50, and I clearly recall buying a F/VF copy for $3.75 about this time, and thinking I'd gotten a good deal.

Argosy Books was a small shop off Hollywood Boulevard, and the couple of times I was there they just had a couple of boxes of coverless 1949 Marvel Family, Classics, etc., nothing like Cherokee Books (Burt Blum, where are you now? Does anybody remember the 10¢ sale?)

The reason I got the book was to con-vince more gullible fans that the last month's Marvel comics I got for 5 cents at the Azusa Swap Meet were really worth 50 cents, and it worked pretty good. [still works, too, only now people use Comics Value Monthly. Ha!—editor]

Re: Golden Age cutoff dates: I always thought 1945 was the end of the golden age, but I also consider the start to be the early 30s.

With the end of the war in '45 and the return of the G.I.s to stateside, you can really see a change. The target audience and content seemed to shift in a way that's best exemplified by the changes in the Fox books beginning in 1946. It's the cartoonists who broke in at this time, Feldstein, Wood, Kurtzman, etc., that would flower a few years later at EC. The end of the EC era is also the end of the postwar, pre-Code era.

Landon Chesney writes such great letters, let's see a cover from him, maybe Shadow or Batman. [OK, L.C. you heard it from fandom. When can we expect your cover?—editor]

For Donna Overall, re: black characters in older comics: Blacks were treated as anything from reductionist stereotypes to more overtly rascist stereotypes, depending, I suppose, on the combined understanding of the editor, writer and artist in regards to the "race problem." A white person raised in a rascist society (which no one will deny existed in the 40s) can't help but reflect the attitudes of that society. Comic books, created mainly by whites, reflected the same stereotypes that other popular media had for years. Clean Fun is a late 40s B&W homor book, where an unsophisticated southern black is depicted as the town fool, though he works side-by-side with white laborers. All Negro Comics (1947) was, I believe, the only truly black comic, published by and for blacks, its single issue featured Ace Harlem Private Eye, Lion Man, and bubba (jungle adventures) and humorous and juvenile features. There were three issues of Negro Romance by Fawcett, and a reprint, Negro Romances, by Charlton. I never owned one, so can't comment, except to say that Fawcett was one of the most low-key of comics publishers, so the stories were probably colorblind. There were two issues of Negro Heroes, which were reprints from True Comics, etc. Joe Worker And The Story Of Labor is a rare AFL/CIO giveaway that's explicitly anti-rascist, and anti-KKK. Amazing Spider-Man 18 is, to the best of my knowledge, the first time a black person was used as a walk-on character in a modern comic. From my understanding of his work, Steve Ditko is the last person who'd want to be called politically correct, and in fact, considering that as a white guy he was the first person to do this in twenty years, this act becomes revolutionary, as is Stan Lee's realistic dialogue in the same sequence. This mag's cover date of November, 1964 places it well before the national unrest of the next summer, and well before TV shows and the advertising media incorporated blacks into our reflected view of day-to-day America. Comics, ya gotta love 'em.

I understand there were black cartoonists early on. I think A. C. Hollingsworth, who did some nice Avon work, was black, and I'm sure other readers know more.

I'm not positive, but I seem to remember that one of the top "good girl" artists , was it Wallace Wood?, was black. Can any readers give us other black artists/ writers from the early days of comics?

Do you remember buying the first Overstreet guide? What was your group's impression of it back in those days? How about the RBCC—how much did the early hobby rely on the RBCC as a source of information, and how did The Buyer's Guide replace it as the primary hobby publication? Sorry to ask so many questions, but you opened up this can of worms by letting it out that you've been around since the stone age! Just kidding.

Apologetic Tongue-In-Cheek

To Keith Contarino:

My wife always said my sense of humor was going to get me in trouble and I guess this is one of those times.

I swear on my complete Sandman collection that the comments I made about your article ("Ten Comics That Stink Up Your Mailbox") were entirely tongue-in-cheek. I thought that the comment I made about several of the books on your list being a part of a giveaway or sale promotion conveyed that overall feeling. I see I need to be a bit more particular about the words I use in letters dashed off in a hurry.

I remember reading the editor's comments and thinking, "I didn't say I didn't like the article." Then I got a postcard from the people I bought the Conan from reminding me that the book is flawless. Now I see your comments in Comics Source #8 and realize that I needed to do some clarifying. I should mention that I bought the Conan through an auction and it was my high bid that was accepted. Yes, it was higher than the near mint price in the guide but, then again, the book is truly mint. There's just always that nagging suspicion that maybe I could have gotten the book at a lower bid. It was in no way a comment against the people I bought the book from.

I have enjoyed Keith's work since the Comic Book Marketplace days. A favorite article was "Highgradedealerphobia" from issue #11. "The Price of Admi$$ion" was part of the reason I subscribed to that magazine—just as "Silver & Gold" is a major reason I subscribe to Comics Source. I use the articles from issues 2 and 3 as the basis for my arguments on why Silver and Golden Age make a better investment than anything published in the past ten years.

I work for a major retailer and recently went through one of their training courses. A good portion of the lecture was given to the importance of inventory turns. You did a better job of explaining it in your "Silver & Gold" article from Comics Source #4.

I enjoy your bluntness. I feel there is entirely too much hype in the industry and I particularly search out articless that educate without rose-colored glasses. I'm still waiting for an article about the comments you made in Comics Source #1 about how the Overstreet price guides may not be the trusted guides they once were. I want to see that letter that CBG wouldn't publish. I am interested in hearing what your view, as a retailer, is on a rating system for comics. Do you feel that it would be a valuable tool in suggesting comics to a new or concerned customer or do you feel it is unnecessary and would have a negative impact on the author as Frank Miller says the movie rating system does? What's your opinion of the impact that Image Comics has had on the industry? Do the high volume sales outweigh the damage caused by late issues or the potential trouble that might come from offended parents of young children who might have bought a graphic issue? I would enjoy a review column where the reviewer was a bit more blunt about the books not liked.

Looking through back issues, I can't find an article of yours that didn't make a lasting impression. Limiting yourself to a list of "good-smelling books" makes your article just another "sleeper" article, adds to the hype and takes time away from more important items that I have gotten into the habit of looking to you for.

I sincerely apologize for not being more clear in my comments about your article. I see where I didn't separate my sincere complaints about the checklist from my joking about you picking on me. My tongue is out of my cheek. I loved the article

E.C. Comics

How the New Trend Began

By Lawrence Watt-Evans

William M. Gaines wanted to be a teacher.

His father, Max C. Gaines, was the inventor of the comic book, the man who convinced National/DC to buy Superman, former top man at National's All-American Comics division, and the owner-publisher of Educational Comics and Entertaining Comics, but Bill just wanted to be a school teacher.

Then, in 1947, Max Gaines died in a boating accident, and his widow and son found themselves owners of a comic-book company.

Bill wanted to sell, but his mother talked him out of that idea—and into the publisher's office.

Gaines had no idea what a publisher was supposed to do; he'd never taken much interest in his father's work. A few things were obvious, though. The EC line had initially been comprised of educational titles and comics aimed at the very young reader: Tiny Tots Comics ("your first comic book!"), Animal Fables (featuring a funny-animal swipe of the Human Torch called "Freddy Firefly"), Land of the Lost (based on a kid's radio program), Picture Stories from the Bible, and Picture Stories from American History, Animated Comics, and Dandy Comics, which were more of the same, but had also become a bit more adventurous with two crime/adventure titles, Blackstone ("the magician detective fights crime!") and International Comics; two humor titles, Happy Houlihans and Fat & Slat; and even a superhero title, Moon Girl & the Prince, which imitated Wonder Woman.

And what was obvious about all these titles was that they weren't selling.

To begin with, 1947 was a rough year for the comic-book industry—superheroes, which had made everyone piles of money for almost a decade, were going out of style, and everyone was scrabbling for the "next big thing." None of EC's titles were it.

Max Gaines had run EC as a labor of love, publishing comics he thought kids ought to read, but his survivors weren't so idealistic—they looked on EC as a source of income. So the first thing Bill Gaines did, at the suggestion of his editors and bookkeepers, was to cancel the worst losers. Animated Comics never saw a second issue; the license to the Harry Blackstone character was dropped, and Blackstone went to Marvel for its second issue. (It lasted through #4.)

All the Picture Stories titles bit the dust—though the warehouse stock stayed on sale by mail order and to schools for years before it was finally used up; those issues had the advantage of being "educational" and not going out of date, so they weren't just pulped.

Animal Fables and Tiny Tots went. Land of the Lost #9 was delayed, and #10 never appeared. Moon Girl & the Prince became simply Moon Girl in an attempt to look more like everyone else's superhero titles. International Comics was revamped somewhat, and the sixth issue, which was delayed, was International Crime Patrol.

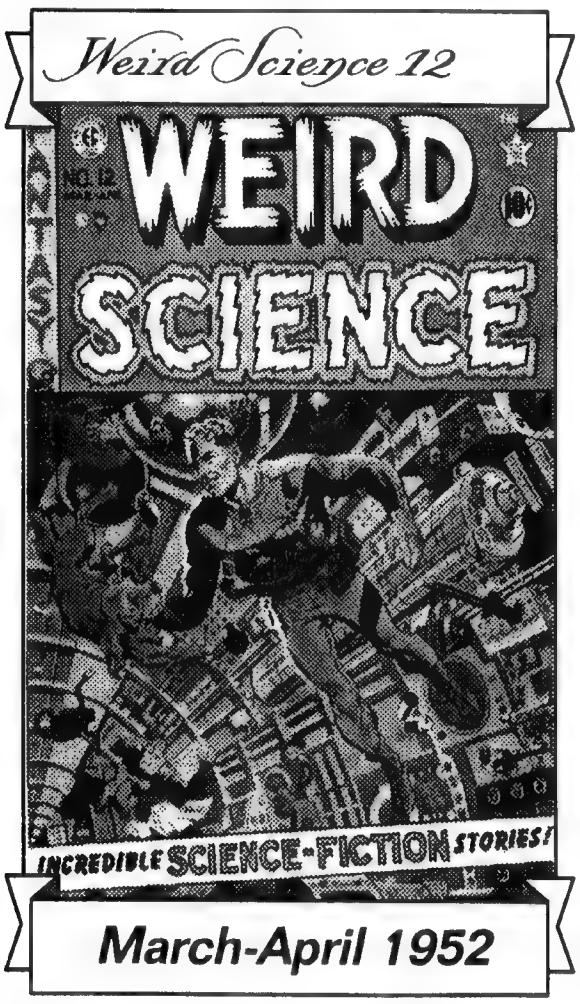
That was the first big round of changes, but it didn't stop there. Crime and westerns were selling; humor was not. Happy Houlihans became a western, Saddle Justice as of #3; Fat & Slat became Gunfighter. International Crime Patrol became simply Crime Patrol, and dropped its international cast in favor of plain old cop stories. A new title, War Against Crime!, was added.

And the company still lost money.

By the end of 1948, EC was down to three titles: Gunfighter, Crime Patrol, and War Against Crime! Two others, Moon Girl and Saddle Justice, weren't officially cancelled, but they weren't coming out, either.



By the end of 1948, EC was down to three titles: Gunfighter, Crime Patrol, and War Against Crime!

Up until then, most EC titles were quarterly, with a few of the more successful ones making it to bimonthly. Apparently it was at this point that someone realized kids prefer comics that come out more often, because from March 1948 on, all EC titles were bimonthly and stayed that way until 1954.

That was the bottom of the bust; in the spring of 1949 Moon Girl and Saddle Justice returned, and there was enough money to risk launching a new title, Modern Love, to cash in on the latest fad—romance comics.

Romances were so hot, in fact, that by the end of 1949 the two weakest titles were both transformed into romance books; Saddle Justice became Saddle Romances, and Moon Girl, after two issues as Moon Girl Fights Crime, became A Moon, A Girl . . . Romance!

Three romance titles, two crime titles, and a western . . . and E.C. was still losing money. In fact, sales were so bad that Bill Gaines felt he had nothing left to lose; the company was doomed, and would be out of business by 1951 if the trend continued.

He hated westerns, cops and robbers, and romance comics, so if the company was going down the tubes anyway, why was he publishing this stuff? Maybe it was making enough money for other people, but not for him.

So if he was going to go broke, why shouldn't he at least publish some comic books he liked, first?

He and his editor, Al Feldstein, didn't talk about westerns or romances when they were just shooting the breeze—they talked about the stories in the science fiction pulps or on the radio suspense shows like "Inner Sanctum" or "Lights Out." So why didn't they publish stories like that?

They ran a couple of horror stories in the back of Crime Patrol and War Against Crime!; just for fun, and then, in the spring of 1950, before they'd really had any time to see what readers thought, they converted almost the entire EC line to horror and science fiction.

Gunfighter became Haunt of Fear with #15.

Crime Patrol became Crypt of Terror with #17.

War Against Crime! became Weird Science with #12.

And A Moon, A Girl . . . Romance! became Weird Fantasy with #13.

Modern Love kept going unchanged, for the moment.

The five new titles were announced as "the new trend in comic magazines!" but Gaines and Feldstein didn't really expect it to work. In fact, they were ready to back down on the horror titles six months later. Haunt of Fear was to be replaced with Two-Fisted Tales, an adventure title; Vault of Horror would go back to crime as Crime Suspenstories; and Crypt of Terror was toned down slightly to become Tales from the Crypt.

And Modern Love was cancelled, but ran a self-parody in the final issue, #8, that was a sign of things to come—things called MAD.

Two-Fisted Tales #18 and Tales from the Crypt #20 had come out, and Crime Suspenstories #15 was at the printer, when the final sales figures for the first New Trend issues came in.

They were good.

In fact, they were excellent. EC had a hit on their hands with the New Trend. So, most of the print-run of the first issue of Crime Suspenstories was hastily relabeled as #1, and Vault of Horror #15 put out as quickly as possible. Haunt of Fear was revived with #4.

EC's brief heyday had begun.

When people talk about E.C. now, they don't mean the stuff from before 1950, titles like Animal Fables or Saddle Justice — that's dismissed as "pre-Trend." And they don't usually mean the stuff E.C. produced as it was dying in 1955.

They mean the New Trend.

Those titles, published bimonthly from 1950 to 1954, set new standards for quality art and quality writing in comics. They pushed the boundaries of what you could do in comics in many ways — not just in levels of gore, but in sophistication.

There are a lot of misconceptions about E.C.'s New Trend titles. People think E.C. invented SF and horror comics, for example. They didn't. There were science fiction comics being published years before Weird Science and Weird Fantasy began. Planet was the best of the lot.

But Gaines and Feldstein, if they knew this at all, didn't think much of the competition; their interest in SF came from the pulp magazines, such as Astounding Science-Fiction, that were aimed at an intelligent, adult audience.

As for horror, Avon, ACG, and Marvel/Atlas had all published horror comics before E.C., but Gaines did not know that — he later claimed, incorrectly, to have invented horror comics, when he had actually merely recreated a prior invention.

Gaines and Feldstein didn't invent horror or SF comics — they just did them better than anyone else.

In sales, the science fiction comics were only moderately successful, at best; in fact, for most of their run they lost money, and were kept alive only because Gaines and Feldstein liked them.

The horror comics, though, were a major hit. Kids across America had their minds twisted by Tales From The Crypt and its companions — Stephen King, George Romero, and any number of other people in the arts have cited the old E.C. comics as a major childhood influence.

So what made them special?

Great art, for one thing. Gaines wasn't a comics fan; his ideas of good illustration came from the illustrated books of the day, and he encouraged his artists to develop their own distinctive styles, and to work in much greater detail than anyone had ever bothered with in comics. In Golden Age comics the art generally made no attempt at realism; if you could tell who was punching who, that was good enough. E.C. set a higher standard.

And the stories... E.C. stories didn't have simple good guys vs. bad guys plots. The plots took twists and turns, the wrong people got killed, sometimes the monsters won. In Shock Suspenstories in particular — a title that was added in 1952 — the reader couldn't rely on the stereotypes of the day. The sheriff might turn out to be the bad guy; the escaping convict might be innocent.

By today's standards, these stories wouldn't be all that amazing — above average, but not staggering. But in 1952? They were mind-boggling.

So naturally, they ran smack into trouble.

Comics had been encountering some problems even before this; by 1945, when E.C. was founded, there had already been articles in parents' magazines complaining that comics promoted illiteracy and depicted too much crime and violence, that they were unhealthy for young minds. (The illiteracy argument was that kids read comics instead of books; the truth was that kids who didn't have comics often didn't read anything.)

Sometimes the E.C. gang did get carried away, as in the notorious "Foul Play," in Haunt Of Fear #19

Comic books had always been violent, of course. Captain America machine-gunned Nazi troops by the hundred; mystery men punched out criminals all over the place. This doesn't seem to have bothered parents much; it was obviously fantasy, with cleancut good guys beating up on rotten bad guys.

But at E.C. the violence wasn't so tidy. Wives shot husbands and got away with it. Vampire hunters might drive a stake through the wrong heart. Evil wasn't always punished. Death wasn't tidy. Walking corpses weren't just presented as pale-faced guys with stiff arms, they were drawn with rotting, crumbling faces.

And sometimes the E.C. gang did get carried away, as in the notorious "Foul Play," in Haunt Of Fear #19, where the final panel depicts a killer disassembled and used as baseball equipment — his head, with one eye dangling from the socket, is the ball; his intestines are the baselines; his leg is the bat; and so on. And this was presented as justice, with the host making jokes about it! Then there was Crime Suspenstories #20, showing a hanged man — not a cleaned-up Hollywood version, but realistically, his eyes rolled back, his tongue swollen and protruding. Or Crime Suspenstories #22, which depicted an axe murderer holding up his victim's severed head. This, said parents across America, was subversive, not to mention disgusting. They didn't want their kids reading it. The comics distributors listened. The New York state legislature listened. The U.S. Senate, led by Senator Estes Kefauver, listened. And the other comics publishers, seeing what was happening, also listened; they created the Comics Code Authority to clean up comics and get all that nasty gore and crime out of there — along with anything resembling adult plots, as the original version of the Code required that the good guys had to win every battle.

And E.C.'s New Trend, which depended on crime, gore, and twist endings, died.

E.C. replaced it with a new line called the New Direction, but the magazine distributors were not happy with E.C., and the Code gave E.C. endless problems, so none of the New Direction titles lasted past the fifth issue.

They tried non-Code black-&-white magazines called PictoFiction, but those flopped — and to finish them off, their distributor, Leader News, went bankrupt, leaving them with no way to get comics to the buying public.

And that was the end of E.C. as a comics publisher.

They weren't completely dead, though. In 1952, when the future had looked bright, E.C. had launched a humor comic; in 1955, they had transformed it to a magazine.

It's still going today.

The title is Mad, and it eventually made Bill Gaines and Al Feldstein both rich — something that the comics, good as they were, would probably never have done.

POP HOLLINGER

THE FIRST COMIC BOOK COLLECTOR/DEALER

by Tim Hessee

Pop introduced me to the Justice Society of America via an old All Star comic book. I was awed by a sense of wonder and excitement.

Today comic books are a big business. Chains of comic book stores and independent comic shops can be found in every big city and many smaller ones. This recent phenomenon replaced used book stores and thrift shops as the main outlet for old comics. The second hand shops heyday from the '40s until about 1970 are just a fond remembrance for older comic collectors. Few, if any of these shops specialized in old comics or considered the possibility of comics becoming collectable in their own right. Pop Hollinger considered the possibility and decided to do something about it. From 1939 until 1971, Pop operated a used comic book/pulp/magazine store in downtown Concordia, Kansas, in the basement under Glenn Cook's food store.

I first became aware of Pop's store on a Wednesday in the summer of 1965. I was twelve years old and fascinated by comic books. My father, who traded comics at Pop's when he was my age, told me about Pop. Boy was this exciting news, a store with nothing but old comic books! I jumped on my bike, raced downtown to Cook's Food Store, and ran down the stairway at the side of the building. In a window, a ragged old poster featuring the Man of Steel proclaimed, "Superman sold here." The sign on the door said, "Hollinger's Saturday 9-5." I could see stacks of old comic books and Saturday was three days away!

That Saturday morning, I met Pop. He was sitting in a chair, hands behind his head, feet propped on a box, wearing a gray work shirt and pants. He had gray hair, partly, almost toothless, with a receeding hairline, a craggy nose, and rheumy eyes. His ground rules were quickly learned: trade two for one, five cents each, or seven cents if the comic book was "rebuilt".

The atmosphere of Pop's store was as much a part of it as the comic books he sold. Walking into his shop, the musty smell of age and decaying pulp paper greeted me. Pop's comics reeked of it. Straight ahead from the doorway were racks of comic books from knee to eye level against the back wall. To the left of the comic book racks were the paperbacks, to the right magazines. On the left of the doorway was Pop's desk, counter, and work area where Pop kept his account books and "rebuilt" his comics. In front of the counter was Pop's chair. On the right of the doorway sat a potbelly wood stove. In the center of his store stood a bench saw. Pop made all the shelving for his shop and comic book outlets. His store was about twenty feet wide and thirty feet long.

As the old cliché goes, Pop had forgotten more than I knew about comic books. I have never seen a comic older than the '60s and was ignorant of anything besides the current DC and Marvel super heroes. Pop introduced me to the Justice Society of America via an old All Star comic book. I was awed by a sense of wonder and excitement. Who was this Hourman, Dr. Fate, Dr. Mid-Nite, and Johnny Thunder: I could identify Wonder Woman and Hawkman, but the Flash and Green Lantern wore unfamiliar costumes and the Atom was recognizable in name only. Yet I was reading a DC comic advertising Superman and Batman comics! What had happened during the preceeding seventeen years? Thanks to Pop, I acquired Justice League of America #21 and #22 which reintroduced the Justice Society and explained a lot of my dilemma. Pop was a walking encyclopedia of comic book history. He enlightened me on what four-color comics were and how Dell numbered them, how comic books started as newspaper strip reprints and progressed to original material, what EC comics were and their progression into M*ad* magazine.

Saturdays at Pop's was the focal point of my early teen years. I would awake early, make the rounds of the drug stores and supermarkets selling new comics, the ones selling Pop's "rebuilt" comics, and descend the stairway of Pop's promptly at nine am. After browsing Pop's comic book racks looking for any new additions, he and I would shoot the breeze. Over the years he told me about himself and the history behind his store. Pop was born on October 13, 1886 on a farm a few miles from Abilene, Kansas. He was christened Harvey T. Hollinger. He retired from being a high school teacher in the '30s. As a sideline, he opened a second hand store. Around 1939, Pop made the transition from dealing part time in second hand merchandise to dealing full time in used comic books and other periodicals.

Always an innovator, Pop used several ways to expand his comic book business. By 1940, he was wholesaling comic books to various businesses from cafes to food stores. Pop soon had fifteen to twenty outlets all over North Central Kansas. At one time, Pop had five stores selling used comic books in Concordia, compared to only three Concordia stores selling new comics. During this period, he started a mail order comic book club. For twenty cents or thirty cents a week, a person could receive five or ten comics. Pop published a comic book catalogue in 1942. His ads for it stated," Old or used comic books are worth money. We pay from 1 cent to $1 each for certain old comics...be among the first in your community to collect old comics." In this same ad, Pop claimed to "carry a large assortment of every comic book published."

The advertising inserts that Pop placed in his comic books generated mail order business from across the country. He corresponded with and sold comics to several adult collectors from Iowa to North Carolina in the '40s and '50s.

Around this time, Pop started saving first issues and other excess stock. In 1968, he told me that among the many thousands of comic books he put away were 200 Roy Rogers #1. This was an exception as Pop usually saved just a few of most issues.

By 1940, he was wholesaling comic books to various businesses from cafes to food stores.

Pop soon found out comic books did not wear well under constant buying, selling, trading, and reading. To solve this problem, he came up with his comic book "rebuilding" process. He removed the staples from the comic, applied brown paper tape to the spine and inside edges of the cover, re-stapled the comic book through the tape, and finally pressed it flat using a hand screw press that exerted several hundred pounds of pressure. Pop "rebuilt" several dozen comics at a time, the whole process taking four to five days. Over a thirty-two year period, Pop "rebuilt" approximately 50,000 comic books. The earliest one I saw was Walt Disney's Comics and Stories #1 (1940), the latest one was The New Gods #1.

In 1951, it rained all spring. Bloomer's pond about a mile south of Pop's store overflowed its banks and sent a torrent of water rushing down Broadway Street inundating Pop's basement and several other businesses. The majority of his comic books were ruined. With a few exceptions, everything prior to 1950 was lost. Pop hauled several truck loads of soaking wet comics to his son-in-law's farm and dumped them in a landfill.

About once a month, Pop would ask me to bring out a box of comic books from his store room. Usually many good DC, Quality, Fawcett, EC, and Atlas titles turned up. Out of the box containing around 500 comics, I would find thirty to fifty books to buy.

In 1966, I wrote to a fan whose letter was published in Sp*ider-man*. From this contact I discovered the Rocket's Blast - Comic Collector and comic fandom. On a Saturday soon after Pop asked me, "What do you do with all your comics?" I replied, "I keep what I want and trade or sell the rest to other collectors." A copy of the Rocket Blast - Comic Collector was in Pop's hands the next Saturday. A few months later Pop proposed a business deal saying, "I have some comic books I want you to sell for me." He pulled seven or eight books from a desk drawer. All were "rebuilt". Walt Disney's Comics and Stories #1, All Winners #1, All-Select #1, All Flash #1, Green Lama #1, All Hero #1, and Young Allies #1 were some of them. They represented a treasure of classic Golden Age comic books that I had only read about and had never hoped to see.

By 1971 Pop had been in the comic book business thirty-two years, but this would be his last year. In the spring a fire occurred in the attic of Cook's food store. The insurance man told Glen Cook that Pop's comics had to go. He telephoned me with a business proposition. Pop had about 10,000 comic books left. he knew that I was a high school senior on a limited budget. If I bought them all he would make me a good deal. Without a doubt, an offer I could not possibly refuse. Pop closed his shop shortly thereafter.

Pop continued to live in the basement under Cook's food store until 1976, when he moved to St. Ann's Nursing Home. Mary 6, 1977, at the age of ninety, Harvey T. Hollinger died.

During his life, Pop earned four patents. One was for a tray dispenser used in super market meat departments. Another was for a tape dispenser. A third was a student records file cabinet. Pop was always working on one gizmo or another. If he had a problem he would sit down, design a solution and build it.

Pop collected thousands of comic books thinking there would be a collector's market for them one day. He assured himself a certain amount of immortality with thousands of comic books in many private collections bearing his trademark, brown paper tape on the spine and inside edges of the cover.

I think of Pop everytime I see one.

Mail-Order Buying & Selling

By Dr. J. Keith Contarino

I can't remember how long it's been since anyone discussed mail-order procedures and ethics. Since a substantial number of all comic sales are made through the mail, I'd like to spend a little time talking about mail-order, its pitfalls, and ways around them. We need some guidelines for behavior on the part of both buyers and sellers.

First, let's look at mail-orders from a buyer's standpoint. If you are dealing with someone you don't know, your initial concern should be to avoid being blatantly ripped off. A good way to do this is to develop relationships with a few reputable dealers. Of course, this will limit you in your number of purchases. How then do you protect yourself from people you or no one else knows?

The answer, unfortunately, is: Caveat Emptor. At this time in the industry, you can only protect yourself from mail-order thieves by being cautious. Here are a few things you can do to minimize your risk:

1. Take extra care when inquiring about items from ads with no phone numbers unless you know the person placing the ad.

2. Take extra care when inquiring about items from ads with just post office boxes. If there is a phone number to call, do so and ask for a street address (many reputable collectors are reluctant to give their street address for fear of robbery). This will become important if you need to file a claim later. Many well-known dealers operate out of a P.O. box, so I'm not saying to avoid Post Office box ads, but many ripoff artists use P.O. boxes, so just be careful.

3. Purchase small items first, if possible. This sounds good but might not enter into your transaction if it's an Avengers #1 or a Showcase #4 you are trying to purchase. Nevertheless, if you don't start out small, you run a big risk of being unsatisfied, or worse, ripped off.

4. Ask the seller for references. If the collector or dealer can supply you with a list of people that he/she has dealt with who you happen to know, you can verify that this is a reliable person.

5. If he or she has no references, ask if they would submit the book to a third party. For any purchase over $500, I'd insist on either seeing the book yourself or having it looked at by a respected professional. The buyer should be willing to pay for all costs. I know this can be done through Comic Grading Service of America. Also, many dealers will act as a third party for their good clients, often at no charge. If the person you are dealing with is operating from a post office box with no telephone number and will not agree to send the book to a third party, I would be extremely wary

6. Ask to see the book on approval. If you have been in this hobby very long and have a few very good references, you should be able to view a book before purchasing it. If you are treated like this by national level dealers, why should you not expect the same treatment from part-timers or newcomers? I once had a seller in a CBG ad tell me he didn't know who Jon Warren, Mark Wilson or Sparkle City Comics were so he couldn't accept them as references for me. Needless to say, we did not do any business.

7. Call the publication the ad was placed in and inquire as to any complaints levied against the persons placing the ad. It's possible to place two or three rip rip-off ads before everyone catches on. I highly recommend that you at least take this precaution of for every major purchase.

8. If you have to pay before you can get the book or books, try to pay using a credit card. Most people just trying to buy or sell a few books don't take credit cards, so this precaution might not always work. But any major company will accept credit cards, and if you are unsatisfied you have a third party through the credit card company to help you resolve the problem.

If you ignore the above precautions, you're taking a Kierkagardian leap of faith when you send some money to someone you don't know. Regardless of method of payment (check, money order, cashiers check), send it certified, return receipt requested or Federal Express. Always make copies of everything for you records. You need to have a paper trail if you ever have a dispute. Incidentally, always offer to pay postage both ways for the privilege of purchasing a book on approval. This way the seller is out nothing should you not accept it.

The second problem area for purchasers is return privilege. Absolutely do not deal with anyone who will not accept returns for any reason over a specified time frame, usually 7-10 days. There simply is no reason not to. You, of course, have to send the books back promptly and in the same condition you sent them in. Comics Source requires all sellers to abide by certain "Standard Mail-Order Terms", including allowing a 6 day return privilege.

Some collectors feel "ripped off" when they receive overgraded books in the mail. I'm often told by some collectors how "so-and-so ripped me off." Usually, it's someone I know and I'm surprised at the statement. After questioning, they weren't ripped off at all—as their money was refunded after the book was returned. Unless we go to some sort of third party brokerage system in this hobby, the best you can ask for is to have your money refunded when you return a book.

No deal is final until you examine the merchandise and accept it. Don't let anyone tell you differently. Your payment to someone to send you a comic is merely a form of escrow. That money is legally yours until you release it to the seller in the form of acceptance of the merchandise. The seller must refund your money if you are not happy. Conversely, if you elect to return a book, act professionally. State your reasons and ask for your refund. Don't yell and scream about how overgraded the book is, etc. We have enough bad feelings in this industry without acting like a baby about returns.

A third concern is hidden restoration/alterations to the book. On a very expensive book, pay a grading service to point out any undisclosed restoration. Professional restoration can be extremely difficult to detect, and, nowadays, restoration is a common fact of life. But you, as a collector, still need to know what has been done to a book. Make it clear to the seller you will not accept the merchandise without expert disclosure of all restoration. What if you don't have the book examined by a professional and you discover some time later the book is restored? Different dealers have different policies. Unless the person you are buying from has a written policy, I think you're stuck with it if he or she decides not to refund your money. For this reason, you need third party verification protection up front. For the record, just because a dealer or collector doesn't disclose to you that a book has been restored don't assume that that person is trying to rip you off. Many dealers and collectors are unable to spot some of today's near-perfect restoration work.

At this point, I would like to suggest a cheap insurance policy: color photocopies of covers. Many sellers who do not want to send a book on approval prior to receiving payment will send a color laser copy of the front and back covers. This is great way to verify that the seller actually has the book in question, but understand that the photocopies reveal nothing of the inside qualities of the book, and they do not exactly reproduce the covers. Color copies do not accurately depict richness of color tone or glossiness, for example. I personally think the buyer should still expect his normal return privilege even though he saw a color copy. The same goes for the seller. While it certainly does no harm to send photos, the deal is not done until the buyer accepts the book itself.

File Copies: Unfortunately, since the high grade Silver Age explosion sent prices sky high, it also put unscrupulous people in a position to make a great deal of money selling phony books. A few years ago, "File Copies" of Silver Age books (mainly Marvels but a few DC's also) began surfacing. These were supposedly perfect copies of certain 60's books kept on file at the publisher. These are not to be confused with the Dell/Gold Key file copies found in Poughkeepsie, NY several years ago. The Dells are legitimate and usually of very high quality, often unread. Not so the Marvels. The phony "File Copies" all appear VF/NM or better, but some have minor restoration!. They can be identified as follows (1) all have FILE COPY stamped on the top or bottom of the first page or inside back cover and (2) most have FILE COPY stamped over an arrival date; some over a person's name. This should alert anyone. How could arrival dates or owner signatures appear on true file copies?

If you are offered a Marvel 1961 to 1966 that has FILE COPY stamped on it, be very careful. Almost all of these books have been trimmed, color touched or both. I have even seen some low grade early Spiderman with FILE COPY stamped on them that have also been trimmed.

Lastly, what about time payments? First, you should get the same return privilege on a time payment book less a certain fee for keeping the book off the open market. This can get tricky. Suppose you agree to pay $7,000 for a VF Showcase #4 and when you get it, it's only a Fine. Should you be penalized 5 or 10 percent because the book is overgraded? I don't think so; but, if that's the policy, you probably will be. It's very important when entering into a time payment/layaway agreement that you understand all the details. I would recommend seeing a photocopy to get a basic idea of the condition of the book, or better yet, arrange to meet the seller for a personal inspection prior to giving an intital deposit. When you are spending thousands of dollars, why take unnecessary chances?

What if you can't finish your payments? I had an attorney tell me that if you put a deposit on an item in a retail store (layaway) and do not pick it up and pay it off, you are entitled to all your money back unless the store has a specific restocking fee and you are informed of this in advance. The reason for this is the store has not been damaged because it can sell the merchandise to someone else. If, however, you start paying on a book and decide for whatever reason you do not want to continue paying, you should expect to pay a reasonable penalty.

As a mail-order dealer, I want to enter into a system that is virtually hassle-free with no returns. This won't happen, but I have had greatest success by sending books to clients on approval. Both Metropolis and Sparkle City Comics started doing this a few years ago with their best clients. Most of my mail-order sales are to repeat buyers. We have established trust and goodwill. I will send books on approval to anyone with whom I've been dealing with for some time. Any new client with good references will also be given this privilege. I have had literally no problems in three years of sending books on approval.

I'm frequently asked by other dealers what steps can be taken to minimize their hassle and risks. Here are some tips:

1. Regardless of your mail carrier, always insure your package and make certain the buyer has to sign for it. Each carrier has limitations, so find out what they are. Don't accept the word of a clerk. Get it in writing from someone who is higher up. An attorney told me that if a mail carrier is aware of your merchandise and accepts money to insure it, they are then liable for it. Since most small claims courts now go up to $5,000, you should be able to force a carrier to pay up for lost or damaged packages at little cost to you — without an attorney. To protect yourself, always put "comic books" on merchandise forms. I always tell the carrier the contents of each package and usually I will write "comics" on the package somewhere.

2. There are a few idiots out there who are so stupid and insecure that they feel the need to damage a book before they return it. I know this sounds crazy, but it's true. Consequently, on expensive books, it's a good idea to include a checklist form listing centerfold, pinups, Marvel value stamps, page count, staples, etc., to prevent someone from clipping a coupon or pulling a centerfold. I had one person burn a cigarette hole into the front cover of a NM/M Fiction House book. He expected me to believe that I, my brother, and my comic book partner at the time all missed this glaring defect. I took the book back anyway, but there are some real nuts out there.

3. I like the concept of third party verification for restoration. I tell customers that I will gladly send any book over $500 to any reputable third party they like. I'm always amazed at dealers who won't. On big books, it's a great idea. In fact, in the future I see all expensive books being verified by professional comic restorers, like Sue Cicconi.

4. Send all books AOD or return receipt requested. Fed Ex makes someone sign for any package. No carrier is supposed to leave insured packages on doorsteps or in mailboxes. If they do, they're responsible for it. You always want someone to sign for the package.

5. Include your name and address on both the outside and inside of your package.

6. Don't spend money received until the purchase passes the deadline for returns.

7. Pack all books carefully. Don't cram them into a package; they will be damaged.

8. Try to treat all your clients the same as you'd like to be treated. If someone calls you about a book, call them back—even if the book is already sold.

9. Any mail-order dealer should accept returns for any reason if the book(s) is sent back in the same condition received and postmarked within five days of receipt.

10. Dealers should try to act reasonably at all times. I have never seen a group of people with more collective ego problems than comic book dealers. It seems, with some, every time a book is returned, it's taken as a personal affront to the dealer's dignity.

11. Refunds. Send them promptly. If books you sent were damaged, refund the buyer's money immediately and then file your claim. You have an agreement or contract with the buyer. He does not have one with your mail carrier, you do. Don't make him wait on your mail carrier, or you'll never get any of his business again—I guarantee it.

I hope this short course in mail-order ethics will help both collectors and dealers in their mail-order endeavors. If you have questions or comments, please write to me care of Comics Source, 2401 Broad Street, Chattanooga, TN 37408.

MARKET TALK

This is your forum

Collectors and dealers are welcome to send us their comments, market reports, opinions on the state of the comics market, or any market-related letters to be included in Comics Source's open forum– "Market Talk."

In our opinion, other magazines ignore the collector's viewpoint when it comes to market reports. Dealer reports are important, but we feel collectors have equally important opinions about the state of the market. So, collectors, here's your forum, your chance to say your two cents worth.

And you get paid for it! If we publish your letter, we will send you a coupon good for $25 worth of FREE marketplace listings. All letters become the property of Comics Source.

What Do You Think?

I was talking with Danny at Frontline Collectibles the other day—just random stuff about the market—and he explained to me why he recently dropped Near Mint prices from his buy ads and added Good buy prices, "I sell more Goods than Near Mints. I make more money off of Goods. You have to pay 90% for Near Mints and then collectors grumble if you price them over guide." He said a collector who will only buy Near Mint copies typically will look at a book graded Near Mint, grumble about its minor flaws, and then walk. A collector buying books in Good condition doesn't care.

This brings us to a discussion of the disease nearmintlepsia, a Bizarro condition where the collector has no books in his collection and brags about the books he didn't buy. How did this all begin? It has to do with the investor mentality that has taken over the hobby, and the false notion that only near mint books are good investments. I know many collectors who have sat on the sidelines while the Silver Age market has made its greatest move in history. They've missed out on all this growth because they passed up the VF copy hoping to find a better NM+ to put away. It's crazy, and it's sad.

What do you think of this current state of the market? That's our write-in forum for this month. Do you have nearmintlepsia? Tell us why. Are you like me, wondering how on earth things ever got this crazy? Write in and tell us about it.

In response to your introductory comments to the TickerTape section of Comics Source #11, let me just say...YES! We can pretend it isn't so, we can tell ourselves that people buy old comics for the sheer pleasure of it...and I don't doubt that many do...but the reason they are willing to PAY what they do is due to that investment potential. They buy comics as opposed to something else because they enjoy it...but they would never pay more than a few dollars for anything if it weren't for over two decades of sales-appreciation history. Action #1 would still be worth, at best, a few hundred dollars—because that's all the ego-boost of being able to tell a few semi-interested friends that you own one would be worth! Is this a bad thing? Of course not. Previous to owning my own shop I worked with Merrill Lynch and Paine-Webber, so I am well-familiar with aspects of investment-markets in general. As long as the market-place has standards and reputability, and its investment-chroniclers are hyperbole-free and accurate, there should be plenty of room for the large investor and the small, the slow-but-steady blue-chip buyer, as well as the high-risk short-term profit-taker. And for that individual who doesn't PLAN on re-selling but wants to savor a bit of nostalgic remembrance...it still doesn't hurt to know that the books have x-amount of return value should a change in finances necessitate their sale.

And I hope it's not in bad taste to discuss a competitor here, but with your editorial approval, here goes...Whatever the market is today, it is because of the Overstreet price guide. Coins, baseball cards, stamps, have each had their primary references, but perhaps none of these other markets were ever so completely dominated by one reference as comics were for many years. And if numerous other sources have sprung up in the last 3-4 years, the guide that STILL dominates, for better or worse, is Overstreet. I have criticized this oft-cited "bible of the industry" myself here in these pages, but that's because I would like to see it improve further in some areas. It still does many things well, and no other reference to date is anywhere close to as definitive, especially for '30s - '70s titles. Nevertheless, this booming investment-aspect of our business that Jon spoke of has changed the market radically in recent years, and the approach that any price-guide takes in the future is going to have to adapt as well. Any data-heavy publication is going to have lots of typos and sort-errors. I've found dozens in the Overstreet Annual; but I published a reference text myself a few years back, and hey...I have a few real beauties to account for too. The question is, how quickly does an ongoing publication respond in correcting those errors, and how open to a changing market are their staffs and editors? There are times these past few months with the updates that I think, if one more time I see Brave and the Bold #25 listing HIGHER than #26 and #27 in NM (which it should), but LOWER in G and F, I'm going to scream (sending terrified customers running for the exits)! And I have customers who have written about this and similar errors a number of times to no effect. And if I'm picking on Overstreet, it's precisely because it's the biggest and most frequently used. Other guides have other inadequacies that could equally be addressed.

Jon is absolutely right when he challenges any and all other price guides to ever-increasing standards of accuracy and dependability. There are sectors of this marketplace that have become truly big business...a large high-grade collection of important books can theoretically be worth in the millions. Just today I spent $1500 for a 10 inch stack of mostly non-key marvels that a few years ago wouldn't have brought $100. That is why it is critical that current and future reference sources know the market inside and out, that they be unafraid to show downside trends with the same fervor they announce price-increases, that an entire sub-market isn't hyped if in reality only some parts of that market are performing as described, that the references serve all varieties of collector and not just the high-end "near mint" intensive minority.

Overstreet is and will likely remain for some time the pre-eminent price GUIDE. But it and any would be challengers for the title will have to be guides in the same way that the Wall Street Journal can be considered a GUIDE to the stock markets... professionally detached and dedicated to rigorous and unemotional analysis. Which in this huge round-about way brings us to Comic Source's Tickertape. Whether the other price-guides respond quickly or not to the burgeoning high-finance component of comic collectibles, there is a powerful need for what Tickertape offers. While it may not REPLACE the data and detail available in a large annual price guide, I see it becoming my other primary source for evaluating purchases as well as pricing of collector comics. As long as the contributors are honest and their grading at least roughly comparable, this could be a breakthrough collectibles-reference in its own right much as Overstreet was for golden-age in the early '70s, the Comics Buyer's Guide was for chronicling the comics industry itself, and Gerber was for providing comic-art lovers with a glimpse at a plethora of issues they might never otherwise lay eyes on. The Tickertape concept is definitely the right product at the right time, and I wish it strong success.

Can I just toss out a debate topic while I'm here...Do we really need a price-guide Near-Mint column at all for books, say, prior to 1965? Sure we could make an exception here and there for some Dells and Harvey's which do show up in Near Mint in semi-frequent numbers, but Overstreet already has a fourth-column system for certain keys, so it's no big deal to do. I recommend, or at least place on the floor for debate, that "Very Fine" really should be the top grade for affixing a definitive price on the majority of comics '30s - early '60s. It's not that Near Mint books don't exist from these eras, but they are rare, often in the hands of only a few people, and are rarely sold for anywhere near what the guides list them for anyway. Wouldn't it just be easier to list the somewhat less volatile "VF" category, and then maybe after a given title, add a line like "truly near-mint books may retail at 1.5x - 2x the "VF" price...or whatever might be applicable for that title or era. Is it significant for the industry as a whole, or even altogether honest, to show, for example, a Showcase #6 with a plus beside its listing month after month, when in reality the price went up only for the dozen-or-so individuals possessing a Near Mint copy, and the price theoretically FELL 32% in the past year for the other 99% of individuals holding "good" to "fine" copies? Wouldn't a one-page report on record "Near Mint" sales serve better than skewing an entire publication toward this increasingly elusive grade? Just a thought, and welcoming feedback.

First of all, I have to set the record straight as to circulation of the major price guides. In terms of circulation numbers, Overstreet's monthly is not the biggest by a long shot. Check your Diamond Dialogue or Capital City Internal Correspondence to verify what I am about to say, but the truth is that Wizard magazine's circulation is over ten times that of Overstreet. Using Internal Correspondence as a guide, you can calculate that the average issue of Wizard sells over 300,000 copies, while Overstreet, at about .12% market share, is selling around 30,000 (IC uses the monthly sales figures of X-Men to compute market share, so by knowing the numbers for X-Men you can calculate the circulation of all other magazines). It might be true that long-time collectors use mainly Overstreet, but the majority of the market now uses Wizard.

Nevertheless, the points you bring up are very important for all of us to consider. More and more, I think collectors are beginning to question the role of price guides—and the integrity of some of the long-standing leaders. Is it right to raise prices month after month on the handful of near mint Showcases that exist? No! Why is it being done? To sell price guides! I agree with you 100% that a price guide should be a "Wall Street Journal" reporter of fact—true market activity, not arbitrary movement based on nothing more than the whims of the pricing guide editor. How often are true price changes (up or down) needed in the real comics market? Not that often, really. Certainly not every month. So a price guide ends up in a catch 22 situation where to validate their very reason for exisiting they must show lots of market activity which only they, from their great ivory tower, are able to tabulate and report to us lesser mortals. This is why I think CVM and Overstreet magazines are doomed. They are a price guide, and only a price guide. The only way they can earn the consumers monthly stipend is if they show lots of market activity. Wizard, on the other hand, is under no such pressure. Wizard is not just a price guide, it is a complete entertainment magazine covering comics, cards, toys, movies, and more. So, as senior price guide editor for Wizard, I am under no pressure to blatantly raise prices on comics. Which is great for me because that matches my philosophy perfectly. So you see, there is a great opportunity to use the Wizard price guide as a tool for regaining sanity in the comics market. If you check the Wizard price guide each month, you will notice that I am constantly lowering prices on shrapnel that no one collects anymore, while raising prices on those areas that truly are active. The price changes are reflective of massive amounts of data entry and research, much more than we ever did at Overstreet when I was price guide editor there. Wizard actually has a staff of guys whose job it is to enter into the computer the results of a huge market survey that we mail out each month. Thousands of prices are entered into this computer system, and an average is calculated. In addition, I use the TickerTape database as a reference tool for pricing in Wizard, thus basing price changes on actual market activity. It's not "The Wall Street Journal," but it's as close as we can get to it with the way the comics market works today.

Wouldn't it be cool if, somehow, a comics price guide could be like the "Wall Street Journal," reporting the latest actual sale price of any given issue? Problem is, there's not enough volume of sales in the comics market. Think about it, there are more shares of stock sold on the New York Stock Exchange in one week than there have been comics sold in the entire publishing history of the comic book medium! That's the problem with comparing the comics market to the stock market—the huge difference in volume. Just because a comic book didn't sell today at the current price guide price doesn't mean that the price guide is too high, it simply means that the right customer didn't show up on this day. So price guides are reporting retail prices while the stock market is reporting auction prices. After all, that's what the stock market is, a huge daily auction.

But, on the other hand, with such a small volume to draw from, what is the basis for the monthly price increases of, say, Brave And The Bold*? I doubt that so many copies of early* Brave And The Bold in near mint were sold the previous month that the guys at Overstreet have been able to calculate a new market price. So the question becomes, "Why did you raise the price?"

THE GUIDE TO SOLD

The topic I brought up last month, the investment backbone of this hobby, needs further discussion and thought. Because, if the primary motivation of collectors of silver age and golden age is monetary (which I believe it is), and the oracles of market value are giving flawed (or false) information (which I believe they are), then the whole basis for this market is in deep doo-doo.

I could go on and on about this subject: the market without price guides (it would still exist and prosper—so the investment aspect is not dependent upon price guides), the need for price guides to reflect the market, not invent it, etc. etc.). But, instead of rambling on, I will open this subject up for discussion. You're reading this, what's your opinion? Write in and share your thoughts. And what about the idea of Very Fine as the highest price in a guide?

Clone Update

This 1994 comic book market, it is a volatile one, isn't it? The market is really torn asunder, with comic book collectors taking completely divergent paths. One segment, unfortunately, has completely left the market for good, reeling from the fact that there are just too many comics out there to try and support month after month. Another part of the comic buying public has thrown out the new books entirely and have just focused on pre-1970 books. The largest segment of comic buyers now only peruse the new books each week, with many realizing the collectible back issue market (i.e. Silver and Golden Age) have become totally unaffordable with their present level of income. We are actually getting to a point where someday we may only find most critical SA and GA books offered through auction houses (Sotheby's and Christie's) and the larger more affluent conventions. This is disheartening, for many comic retailers base their profit margins on back issue sales, particularly Silver Age back issue stock. It has just come to a point where cash flow is so tight one cannot carry critical back stock and a full line of the week's current releases in the old "comic book store" setting. Alas, so much for the adage, "The more things change, the more they stay the same." In this case, it just ain't true.

Enough soap boxing though, for there are some key back issue sales to report. As ludicrous as the movie was, Alec Baldwin did produce some heat for Mike Kaluta's mid-70's Shadow series. A mint set of numbers 1-4 sold for $70 to one collector. The original Incredible Hulk series (#'s 1-6) are always sought after. An incredibly beat and dismantled copy of #5 sold for $65, a "super good" deal to one of our regulars that just refused to pay anything over $100 for this filler in his collection. And the clone issues of Amazing Spiderman #149 and $150? Sheesh! From a $5 run-of-the-mill book to an $80 clamored-for masterpiece! Three F+ copies of #149 sold over the phone to an out of town collector for $60 each. Captain America #100 is pulling its own again after many months of sitting idle. A Good copy sold at $50 and a beautiful VF, priced at $300 for the last six months, finally moved with an over of $200 on it. And after much hemming and hawing, one of our "wealthier" collectors purchased our last copy of the original X-Men #1, a nice looking VG/F for $750.

Until next time, here's to getting more Silver and Golden Age in the comic book outlets that started it all.

Cavalcade Market Report

The big news this month is simply more of what was reported last month: more Gen 13, Lady Death, Vampirella, and Spider-Man clone sales. The Clone phenomenon has sparked a bit of interest in Spider-Man comics from all categories, and other hot recent titles - notably Green Lantern - have sparked interest in related vintage books. The Bad Girl phenomenon continues to pick up steam, affecting even titles such as Wonder Woman.

New Releases

New Image titles and Bad Girls are continuing to dominate the new comic market, with very little else even coming close to the popularity that those two segments are currently enjoying. Shi #2 was probably the hottest comic released in the past month, and in fact, that book and Vengeance of Vampirella #4 (which also did quite well) were the only two bad girl books of note released since last report. It's interesting to note that despite the lingering popularity of this genre, there has not been a flood of new Bad Girl titles as yet, and this has probably served to turn up the heat on the books that are out there.

Gen 13 #5, which would have been hot in its own right, was made even more so by joining the legion of recent Image comics with a cover variant. This gimmick is still doing well for Image (with books such as Union #0 also joining the variant ranks this month), but does show signs of slowing a bit. Doom's IV #1 pushed things a step further, with not one, but two cover variants released for the issue.

After enjoying a good start, DC's Knights End storyline ended rather quietly for DC, perhaps suffering from the same problem that ultimately dampened fan excitement for the return of Superman in Adventures of Superman #500 a year ago: the outcome was a foregone conclusion. Zero Hour has been received reasonably well, however, with most crossovers being in demand, particularly Flash #94, Justice League of America #92, and Hawkman #13.

Current Prices of Note: Doom's IV #1A, #1 $20 ea. Union #0A $15; Shi #2 $5; Flash #94, Justice League of America #92, Hawkman #13 $6 ea.

Recent Comics

As reported last time, this is where all the action is. The current situation with Bad Girls and Gen 13 is very like the Valiant phenomenon of two years ago, with prices on recent comics sometimes adjusted on a daily basis. One has to wonder about the size of the fan base trying to acquire these books, as there are a lot more of all of them (print run-wise) than there were of those early Valiants. On the other hand, there were two or three major wholesale sources back in '92 who had the Valiants stocked deep - you had to pay for them, but at least there were a few reliable sources. These days, there are far fewer wholesalers in the business, and those who are aren't in the mood to take big risks. Therefore, these books are legitimately tough to restock.

All of the usual bad girls are in demand, including Lady Death, Vampirella and Shi. Chaos' Evil Ernie series has received a tremendous boost from the popularity of Lady Death. Gen 13 is really dominating the rest of the Image line, and besides the cover variants, only Spawn does reasonably well as a recent back issue.

From DC, Green Lantern #47-50 continue to do pretty well for us, and it looks like they will soon be joined by Flash #92-94, a story arc that introduced the (alleged) next Flash, Impulse. DC has picked up on the Bad Girl phenomenon with Vamps, and #1 has done quite well since #2 was released this month.

Prices of Note: Lady Death #1 $75, #2 $25, #3 $12; Shi #1 $15; Gen 13 #1/2 $50, 12 $40 ea., #3 $20, #4 $12; Flash #92 $20, #93, $12; Green Lantern #47 $15; Vengeance of Vampi #1 $20, #2 $6; Evil Ernie (Chaos!) #0 $10, #1-4 $15 ea.

Modern Age Back Issues

Spider-Man barely edges out the Bad

Girls in this active market segment. Amazing Spider-Man #149 is still on many fan's most wanted lists. Amazing Spider-Man #142-148 and #150, #151 (the Gwen Stacy clone storyline) are also in demand, as is What If (vol. 1)#30, with the currently irresistible title of "What If Spider-Man's Clone Had Lived?"

But the Bad Girls even reach back to this segment, as a few of them have their genesis in low print-run indies from a few years back. Lady Death first appeared in Eternity's Evil Ernie series, and all 5 issues are moving briskly for us. It should be noted that there is a second version of #1, which Malibu put out under their Adventure imprint after the series had concluded. As we've noted often, all issues of Cry for Dawn sell incredibly well for us, with #1 and #2 recently bringing record prices.

Prices of Note: Amazing Spider-Man #149 VF $150, #149 VFNM $250; Evil Ernie (Eternity) #1 $100, #2 $75, #3-5 ea. $40, #1 (Adventure) $100; Cry for Dawn #1 $250, #2 $100; What If #30 $40, Flaming Carrot #3 $60; Bone #5 $45; Cedrebus #161 $40.

Vintage Back Issues

Wonder Woman has been the vintage phenomenon of note recently, with all issues up through the twenty centers being scooped up regardless of condition. Green Lantern sales have also surged dramatically recently, with issues #1-20 and Showcase #22-24 leading the way. DC's in general are outdistancing Marvels, as titles such as Challengers of the Unknown join Superman and Batman as brisk sellers.

That's not to imply that Marvels aren't selling. They are, led by Amazing Spider-Man and Uncanny X-Men. As noted some months back, lower grade Marvels of many titles have been doing pretty decently lately also.

Prices of Note: Green Lantern #7 $150, Showcase #23 FVF $750, Amazing Spider-Man #31 VF $150; Batman #88 F $165, #234 VF $100; Uncanny X-Men #35 VF $85, #49 VFNM $100.

More Slammin' Price Guides

I think price guides are pure fantasy! There are too many of them and there is not much price correlation from one to the next. Outside of 60s books and a few current books, most prices probably reflect the year 2094 rather than 1994. Has anyone looked at a CVM lately? If I could get those numbers on any old back issue, I could retire. If books are really worth what CVM lists them for then the companys that publish the guide should buy them, happily, for say...60% of list price. NOT! I just sold 50,000 back issues (Marvel, DC, independents) and I consider myself lucky that I got 10¢ each. Next time I should call CVM. Ha!

I think it is good that back issues do show a price increase in the guides. People who buy guides are usually investors, of all ages, and they want to see their books going up. The problem arises when a book goes up too fast or gets caught up in the hype. What happens next is interest goes down (it always does eventually—but it hasn't happened to Spawn and I don't know if it will for a long while), the book stops selling altogether but the guides don't adjust. You don't want to put a minus in the guide—that condemns a book for life. Dealers lower their prices and the kids want to know why did their Shadowhawk #1 go down. In a nutshell, it's better to work under a low guide and charge above-guide prices than to start with a high guide and then be forced to lower your prices when nobody cares about the book anymore. Some will disagree, but when you run a small store and know every customer, you don't want to have to explain to all of them why the books they purchased four months ago are selling for less now than when they bought them. It leaves a bad taste in their mouths about collecting comics and they quit. I've seen it happen. The more I think about it, the more I feel we are all in a can't-win scenario. You have to raise prices in the guide to satisfy the investors but demand will never be constant and eventually most will go down, pissing off the same investors.

What I Buy-Sell

TICKER TAPE
THE GUIDE TO SOLD

Key silver age in all grades—especially lower grades. I do better with the lower grades than the higher. They are easier to buy and easier to sell. Just about all key Marvel and DCs in good sold out of my ads. I don't do that well with non-keys. Every now and then I get one and stick it in my ad. I end up selling it for way below guide hence when I buy non-keys, I pay much less. There is a constant demand for key issues (just look at TickerTape—where is the most activity?). As a dealer or collector, if you pay right, you cannot get hurt with a key issue—no matter what the grade.

New Stuff

I have cut my new issue orders to the bone. Being in a small store I am afforded the luxury of knowing each and every customer, their likes and dislikes. Each week, I am 80-90% sold out of new issues. For dealers, the key to good business is not getting stuck and eating too much pulp paper. I don't want to backstock anything (except Spawn) because I don't sell any recent back issues (God knows I tried that route).

Spawn

Consistently the best book on the recent market. I sell 6 to 7 times the number of Spawn than the average Marvel, DC, or Image book. I have about 10 people who only come into my store once a month to buy one comic—Spawn. These are the same people who used to buy all the Image titles, Valiants, and Marvel "special" covers. I guess the cream always rises to the top!

I disagree with your statement that you have to raise prices to please investors. I don't think it is the job of a price guide to please anyone. Rather, it is the job of a price guide to honestly report what comics are actually worth. Any compromise to this philosophy is a con job. I do agree with your statement that investors want to see their books go up, and I agree that, in many cases, price guide prices seem to be pure fantasy.

So, my question to readers is, what do we do about this seemingly "can't win" scenario?

HOW TO USE TICKERTAPE

TickerTape is such a revolutionary way of reporting prices that, at first, many readers don't understand how to use it. But once they see what it is all about, most people say, "Whoa! Why didn't someone think of this before?" The answer is simple, no one else has the genius and vision that us Einstein's here at Comics Source have. Ha!

To help you lesser mortals understand, we have provided the information below to help explain the format. Remember, all of the prices you see in TickerTape are actual, documented sales—not estimates, averages, or bald-faced guesses. Hey, TickerTape is the truest kind of price guide. But we're always looking for ways to improve, so if you have any suggestions, write us at TickerTape, Box 2512, Chattanooga, TN 37409

Our Marketplace offers a convenient place to quickly find the items you need from a wide variety of dealers and collectors. But before you shop by phone, look for the mail-order source that is best for you. Here are a few tips to help you get the most out of your buying experience.

Mail order is an excellent way to buy and sell, because it gives you instant access to more buyers, sellers and merchandise than can be found in any g e o g r a p h i c market. But, as in any endeavor, it's smart to take precautions.

Here are a few tips that will make your dealings through the mail easy and hassle free.

Research The Company

Well-established companies or long-time collectors tend to be reliable, but if you're not sure how well established a company or individual is, it pays to do a little research and ask a few questions. Get References. Call the publication the ad was placed in and inquire as to any complaints levied against the persons placing the ad. Comics Source blacklists any advertiser who receives three unresolved written complaints.

Start Small

Purchase inexpensive items first, if possible. If you're pleased with the service you receive, order again.

Compare Prices

If a price seems too good to be true, beware. One of the greatest features of our marketplace is the ability to quickly compare prices. If someone's price is far below what others are offering the item for, ask why. There could be a good reason, but sometimes this is a sign of a potential rip-off. We try to screen advertisers, but it's still smart to take precautions.

Pay With Credit

Whenever possible, use a credit card. Some credit card companies do such things as chargeback on unsatisfactory purchases or give a refund if you find a lower price elsewhere. If you have a problem with an order, your credit card company will often deal with the mail-order company.

Be Cautious

Keep a record of your transactions (orders, follow-up letters, phone conversations) so that you have recourse in the unlikely event of a problem.

Consider using a 3rd party service

3rd party services, such as Pacific Comics Exchange, offer to act as an escrow service. Companies charge a fee for this service, but the fee is well worth it if you're spending large sums of money.

Ask For Photocopies

Most reliable collectors or dealers will be only too glad to send you a photocopy or Polaroid photo of an item. Sometimes they may ask for a small fee per photo.

Delivery Methods

Ask about delivery methods — find out what carriers are used, how fast they are, and how much each one costs. Record delivery information.

Return Policies

Because you're buying sight unseen, make sure the company or individual has a return policy you're comfortable with. Find out if you are responsible for paying shipping charges on returned goods and whether you'll be charged a restocking fee. A typical return policy is six days from date of receipt. If the company does not offer a return policy, don't buy!

HOW TO USE THE MARKETPLACE

The Comics Source Marketplace is such a revolutionary way of listing comics for sale that, at first, many readers don't understand how to use it. But once they see how it works, the benefits are immediately obvious. Because all comics are listed alphabetically, regardless of who the seller is, finding comics for your collection is quick and simple. No longer do you have to scan hundreds of ads with a magnifying glass (like you do in CBG).

But our format admittedly takes some getting used to, so to help you newcomers understand, we have provided the information below.

Remember, all of the items in the Marketplace are either FOR SALE or WANTED. You contact buyers or sellers directly, using their ID Code and the advertiser directory found in the back of the magazine.

We're always looking for ways to improve, so if you have any suggestions, write us at Comics Source Marketplace, Box 2512, Chattanooga, TN 37409

MAKING THE GRADE

Comic Book Values Are Determined By Condition

by Jon R. Warren

Comic books, like movie posters, coins, stamps, sports cards, and everything else that people collect, are valued according to condition. Because human beings prize things that glitter, the more like new the book is, the more collectors will pay for it. Seems simple enough, right? WRONG!

Because talking about condition really means talking about money, buyers and sellers often have a hard time agreeing on the grade of a book. But, fortunately, there are standard terms that everyone does agree on (what those terms mean is another story). Unluckily, it takes years of looking at thousands of variances of grade before you can really be a knowledgeable grader. So how do you know what grade a comic book is in if you are new at "making the grade"? Let me suggest that you start simple and then focus in on the final grade. Here's what I mean:

PERFECT

We all know what that is, it's a book in brand new condition. When you go to the newstand and pick the best copy you can find, that's probably a PERFECT like-new comic book (unless it was mangled on the newsstand). The term for a comic book in perfect condition is MINT. Although some dealers will try to convince you that 30 or 40 year-old comic books aren't graded as strictly as new comics, I wouldn't believe it if I were you. When it comes to MINT, mint is mint. Period.

ABOVE AVERAGE

If someone bought a comic, read it once or twice, then carefully filed it away, it is in ABOVE AVERAGE condition. We refer to comics in above average condition as VF or VERY FINE.

AVERAGE

The term collectors use to describe AVERAGE is VERY GOOD or VG for short. Since comic books were meant to be read and handled, books that have been read and handled are in average condition. Creased corners, little tears, stuff that you could expect from normal use is common in a VG condition book.

BELOW AVERAGE

Comic books that you owned when you were six years old are in BELOW AVERAGE condition because you prol beat the @@#$!! out of them. And they look it! The comic is c lete with all pages, but the cover might be loose, or a piece might be missing from the corner. You know what I mean... ROUGH ROUGH! Collectors call comics in below average condition "GOOD" or "G". Actually, there's nothing good about it at all other than the fact that you have a copy to keep until a better one comes along.

POOR

A book that looks like it was rescued from the trash is in POOR condition. You know you have handled a POOR condition book when you rush to wash your hands afterwards.

Now that you know the five basic ranges of condition a comic book can be in, it's a much easier task to focus in on exactly what the real grade is. Try it yourself. Take a stack of your books and grade them. Is the first one in the stack just like the day you bought it except for a tiny bend on the corner? Then it's not MINT, but you could certainly say it is ABOVE AVERAGE. Put it in the VF stack. Does the next one in the stack look kind of read and re-read? Put it in the VG stack. Continue sorting the books by basic grades. When you are done, refer to the following detailed grading descriptions. You can focus in on the actual grade by reading these fine-tuning grading descriptions. The one that sounds the closest to the grade of your book is the actual grade.

Here are the terms that we comic book afficionados use to describe condition. Throughout the pages of Comics Source you will see these codes used to indicate grade. Memorize them, learn what they mean, and then you can start "Making The Grade."

WARREN GRADING SYSTEM™ & TERMS

The unique terms and grade definitions used here and the system of + and - to illustrate variations of grade is the Warren Grading System, © and ™ Jon R. Warren.

M MINT

A Perfect 10 on a 1-10 scale. A flawless copy in the same condition as the day it was printed. The MINT grade is virtually non-existent in Pre-1970 comics*. Golden Age comics in MINT are extremely rare and fetch huge premiums over average copies of the same comic. When grading a comic mint, no consideration should be given to the age of the book. No printing defects can appear on a MINT comic. The cover should have full original gloss, and appear bright, with sharp corners and no imperfections of any sort. Minute color variations can occur during printing, and are allowed in the MINT classification. The inside covers and all pages are creamy white and fresh. The binding (spine) is tight, flat, and clean without wear or stress lines. Not the slightest blemish can be detected around staples, along the binding and edges or at corners. Arrival dates pencilled (not inked) on the cover are usually acceptable as long as they're very small. When the surfaces of the front and back covers are held to the light, not the slightest wear, indentations, wrinkles or defects of any kind can be observed. As comics must be truly perfect to be in this grade, they are obviously extremely scarce and seldom offered for sale.

NM/M NEAR MINT TO MINT

Approaching MINT but with a very slight blemish of some sort.

NM+

Top of the NM range. NM/M and NM+ are interchangeable.

NM NEAR MINT

9 on a 1-10 scale. A copy that is virtually MINT but for one or two very tiny imperfections. Like new but with tiny flaws found on most new comics. A tiny (1/16th inch) color flake missing at a staple, corner or edge, or a tiny (1/16th inch) edge tear is allowable in the category if no other imperfections are present. No crease of any kind. Superb cover gloss is present. A very few tiny stress lines along the spine could be present. Pages and covers should be creamy to white, not yellow or brown. No color touch-up, repair or restoration of any kind is allowed in this grade. This grade is very rare in books prior to 1970.

NM-

Bottom of the NM range.

VF/NM VERY FINE NEAR MINT

8 on a 1-10 scale. Beautiful, glossy and excellent in every way with only minor imperfections that keep it out of the higher grades. One tiny corner crease of less than 1/8th inch length is allowed. A couple of tiny (1/16th inch) stress lines along the spine are acceptable if the appearance of the book is not gravely affected. Pages should be creamy white, not yellowed or tan. A common defect in this grade is a tiny spine tear at the upper or lower binding (spine) not greater than 1/16th inch in length. One or two tiny tears (1/16th inch) are permitted in this grade if the copy is otherwise without flaw. An extremely tiny tear repair, microscopic dot color touch-up, unobtrusive arrival date erasure or other similar invisible alteration, on an otherwise Near Mint copy, is permitted in this grade.

VF+

Top of the VF range.

VF VERY FINE

7 on a 1-10 scale. Superb. An outstanding copy in an unusual state of preservation. Clean and bright with sharp corners and pliant interior paper. Slight cover wear is present; possibly 5 or 6 tiny wrinkles or stress lines at staples or along spine where cover has been opened a few times; still clean and flat with 80 per cent of cover gloss retained. Interior page quality should be creamy to white, not yellowish or brown. A few tiny color chips or imperfections could be present. A faint 1/4" corner crease on an otherwise exceptional copy could be present in this grade. Very minor professional restoration or repair is permitted in this grade if noted and described.

VF-

Bottom of the VF range.

FVF FINE-VERY FINE

6 on a 1-10 scale. Above Average. A clean, bright copy lacking the crispness associated with Very Fine. Pages can be slightly yellowed but not brown or brittle. Several tiny stress lines along the spine or covers can be expected. Several tiny color flakes are permitted. No subscription creases or spine roll allowed in this grade. Corners may be slightly rounded. Exceptional cover gloss remains (60 per cent or more).

F+

Top of the FINE range.

F FINE

5 on a 1-10 scale. A slightly better-than-average copy with obvious aging and diminishment, but still relatively flat, clean and glossy without subscription creases, writing on cover (except an arrival date), brown margins or tape repairs. Typical flaws include: Light spine wear, minor surface wear, a light crease (1/4" in length), minor yellowing/tanning to interior pages. Still a bright copy with 50 per cent cover gloss. A few stress lines around staples and along spine are normal in this grade, but not more than 1/8" in length. One small edge chip or several tiny chips (such as Marvel chips) are permitted in this grade. One minor tear is allowed on an otherwise FVF copy. A very minor spine roll on an otherwise clean and uncreased copy is permitted in this grade..

F-

Bottom of the FINE range.

VG/F (VERY GOOD FINE)

4 on a 1-10 scale. Better than VG+, approaching FINE but not quite sharp enough to merit the higher grade. Frequently, a FINE copy with an unusual flaw is lowered to VG/F.

VG+

Top of the VG range.

VG (VERY GOOD)

3 on a 1-10 scale. Average. Ordinary signs of use. Appears used, but not abused. The common state of preservation of a comic book that has been used as intended. Significant diminishment of original cover glossiness. Noticeable discoloration or fading could be present. One or two minor markings on covers is permitted. Minor binding (spine) rolling may have occurred. Lightly creased along spine or extremities; a faint subscription crease is allowed. The covers could have a minor tear

MINT IS COMMON IN RECENT COMICS

*Today, most recent comics are bought by collectors and immediately sealed in protective coverings. Recent releases are usually in Near Mint to Mint condition.

or crease where a corner was folded under. The centerfold could be detached or loose from the staples. A small chip or piece from the covers, or a small piece from an interior page that does not affect the live area (artwork area), is acceptable. Pages and inside covers could be tannish or yellowed, but not brittle. A small tape repair could be present in this grade. Still, the appearance of the comic is such that many collectors find the book acceptable until a finer copy can be located.

VG-

Bottom of the VG range.

G/VG GOOD VERY GOOD

2 on a 1-10 scale. Approaching VERY GOOD, with too many signs of abuse to be a solid VERY GOOD. G/VG and G+ represent a very slight variation in grade.

G+

Top of the GOOD range.

G GOOD

1 on a 1-10 scale. Below average. A worn copy but complete with all pages including centerfold, which may or may not be loose. Creased, scuffed, covers lack gloss, faded. Pages could be brown and brittle. Although a copy in this grade could have white pages and covers, the accumulation of defects such as creases, tears or chips and general wear prevent the book from a higher classification.

G-

Bottom of the GOOD range.

FR/G

Approaching GOOD, with too much wear to be a solid GOOD. FR/G and FR+ are interchangeable.

FR+

Heavily worn but approaching the GOOD classification.

FR FAIR

1/2 on a 1-10 scale. Used and abused. Extremely worn, creased, and dirty, with possibly loose pages or significant tears, but still complete. Possibly small pieces missing from the cover, inked markings, tape, etc.

P POOR

0 on a 1-10 scale! A terrible copy. Damaged; extremely worn; dirty; or otherwise unsuited for collection purposes. Pages could be missing. Could be coverless if noted.

THE MARKETPLACE & HOW IT WORKS

How do you contact the advertisers? Simple, all you do is look up the ID code at the end of each listing in the MARKETPLACE ADVERTISER DIRECTORY (in the back of this issue). There you will find the name, address, and (usually) the telephone number. Call 'em up and order!

The COMICS SOURCE Indexed Marketplace is a unique method of arranging ads. Each listing is like a classified ad, with a code at the end that indicates who the buyer or seller is.

Remember, COMICS SOURCE is not a clearinghouse or middleman, you deal directly with each advertiser.

How To Sell Your Comics In Comics Source

1. COMPLETE the ADVERTISING FORM in the back of this issue as follows:
TITLE: Use the correct Comic Book title. Only comic book listings can be offered in the Marketplace. If the title was used by different companies indicate the year or publisher.
ISSUE #: The issue number of the comic. You cannot list more than one issue on a line.
GRADE: See our grading definitions at the beginning of the Marketplace section.
PRICE: The price you are asking.
NOTES: Details that help clarify the condition, or special notes about the comic book. Please keep these notes under 12 words total. Notes must fit in the space provided. If you cannot fit the description on the line provided you will be charged for an extra listing.
2. GRADE strictly and accurately. This is the most important of all! 99% of all mail-order problems are a result of grading disputes.
3. MAIL, PHONE, or FAX your listings to us. We must receive them by the deadline for them to appear in the next issue.
4. INCLUDE PAYMENT (we accept Mastercard, Visa or check). Advertising cost is only $1.25 per listing.

SHIPPING TIPS

1 Ship orders within two days after the check clears.

2 Get a supply of padded mailers, boxes, mailing labels, and shipping tape. These are available at your local office supply store. Package with extreme care to avoid any damage in shipment. Inform the buyer when you will ship the order, and then follow up on it.

3 Always insure your package. For U.S. Postal Service packages, use a return receipt so that someone must sign for it. Whenever possible, use UPS or Federal Express because they automatically require a signature.

4 Pack books carefully in a sturdy box or mailer. Don't cram books into a package.

5 Include your name and address on both the outside and inside of your package.

6 Don't spend the money until the buyer's return privilege expires.

7 If an item is already sold, send a refund check, not a credit form.

8 Treat your buyers the way you'd like to be treated and they will become good customers—buying again and again.

9 As a Comics Source advertiser, you must accept returns for any reason if the comic(s) is sent back in the same condition received and postmarked within six days of receipt. Send refunds promptly. If comics you sent were damaged by the carrier, refund the buyer's money immediately and file your insurance claim.

Mail-Order sales have become highly regulated by the USPS, observing these rules will avoid problems.

Don't take a chance with just any sleeve or board claiming to be archival. Accelerated aging tests show that some of these materials actually break down over time and can ruin your comic books!
